What Makes a Top Concours?

Publisher Martin asked this question of Sandra Button, Chairman of the Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance

By Sandra Button

The unforgettable gathering of Ferrari 250 GTOs at Pebble Beach in 2011

It's all about the cars

A concours can be many things: a sincere charitable endeavor, a strong tourist attraction or a worthy addition to a local calendar of events. But a concours will only be great if it's all about the cars. You have to begin and end there.

The Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance began in 1950 — at a time when its success seemed unlikely. The European concours that had survived World War II were languishing with the decline of custom coachbuilding. A rebirth of the concours in the New World seemed unlikely.

But GIs returning to the United States had a fondness for the sporting cars they had seen overseas — and a desire to race them on real roads, not oval tracks or airport circuits. On the East Coast, enthusiasts gathered at Watkins Glen. In the West, the famed 17-Mile Drive drew them to Pebble Beach, where they sought permission to race and show their cars. Races and con-courses evolved together here, each event lending the other strength when needed. The races were the primary draw in the beginning, but I like to think the concours returned the favor in the early 1970s, when historic racing was introduced at Laguna Seca in concert with our event.

Our heritage makes our goal clear: Place is important, but we were created by car guys to celebrate cars.

Don't be afraid to change course

Phil Hill won three Pebble Beach Road Races on his way to becoming the first American Formula One champion. He also changed the history of the concours d'elegance — at Pebble Beach and the world over.

In the early 1950s, Pebble Beach, like concours before it, focused on new cars. The pioneering automobiles of the antique era were deemed worthy of saving, but use of the term “classic car” was just beginning to be mentioned, and most Classic- Era cars were simply considered old.

Despite this fact, Phil Hill lovingly and meticulously restored the car in which he had first learned to drive — his family's 1931 Pierce-Arrow 41 LeBaron convertible town cabriolet — and he brought the car to the Pebble Beach Concours. Racing great Pete DePaolo championed its cause among his fellow judges, arguing with great passion that classics deserved to be respected and restored. After what I understand was a long and somewhat fierce debate, the car was named Best of Show.

The Pebble Beach Concours changed its course, focusing thereafter on classics and other collector cars, and other concours followed suit.

Take criticism to heart and listen to the advice of enthusiasts

When car guys speak with passion, we do our best to listen.

Admittedly, the Pebble Beach Concours lost its way for a time about two decades after its founding. When Charles Chayne, the former head of engineering for General Motors and a longtime concours supporter, overheard two passionate enthusiasts talking about all that they would do to revive it, he asked if they were truly up for the challenge.

Lorin Tryon and Jules “J.” Heumann said yes — and they were soon invited to serve as co-chairmen of the event. Their many efforts elevated Pebble Beach to world-class status.

During the late 1990s, when concours cars were derided as “trailer queens,” Craig Davis argued for the addition of a road rally to underscore our desire that cars be driven. The Pebble Beach Tour d’Elegance is now an integral part of the concours, and it often determines which cars win their class and compete for Best of Show.

Enthusiasts have also encouraged us to add new competition classes and awards to emphasize the importance of preservation and to celebrate a growing range of cars and motorcycles. And they have pushed us to add dream cars, concepts and new models back into the mix of cars on display. They have also affected a multitude of other details.

Sandra Button awards a Best of Show trophy

Dream on

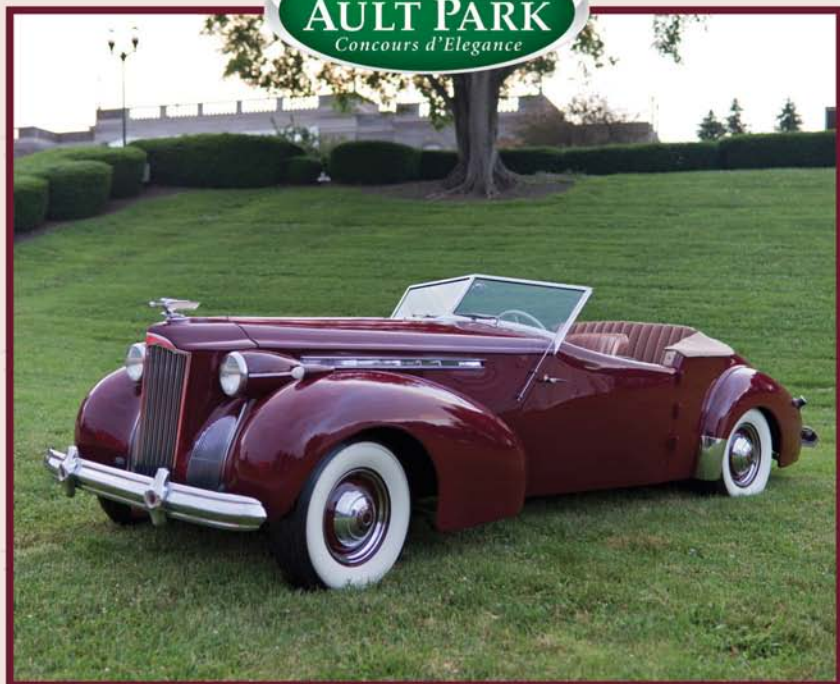

Dream big and dare to act on your dreams.

At a post-concours dinner in the early 1980s, Chris Bock, who is now our chief judge, casually suggested that it might be fun to gather all of the Bugatti Royales together. The expected response was a chuckle or a gasp — particularly because ownership of two of the six cars was the subject of a long and complicated dispute. But a few intrepid souls felt the gathering might be possible.

To make it happen, they needed to negotiate terms with four museums and multiple branches of two governments and find donors to help pay for over $100,000 in related expenses. At the highest levels, they had to meet with U.S. State Department and French government officials to arrange for full diplomatic immunity for the two French vehicles — something never before requested. But all six Bugattis were displayed on our upper lawn in 1985.

In recent years, we've hosted jaw-dropping displays of 22 Ferrari 250 GTOs, 28 Alfa Romeo 8Cs, and 12 Jaguar XK-SS cars on the edge of Carmel Bay. But it's not always about large numbers. Just this past year, we were able to unite four Prinz Heinrich Benzes for the first time, and we also paired the only two custom-built BMW 507s. Both exhibits took years of patient effort to pull together, but we were persistent because we wanted to offer something new to enthusiasts and we wanted to celebrate these cars.

We have to do all we can to work together to preserve and celebrate the cars. ■

10 Tips for a Better Concours Score

No one knows your car better than you. Perhaps you know it too well and can't see the forest for the trees

By Carl Bomstead

Be present with the car so you can answer questions

Having judged, over the course of 30 years or so, at events from local show-and-shines to the Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance, you would think I'd seen it all. Well, I haven't. I never cease to be amazed at what exhibitors do to shoot themselves in the foot when the judging team arrives.

Here are a few tips that may not get you the coveted Best in Show award but will at least have you presenting your car in the best light:

Be there

This sounds rather basic, but you would be surprised how many times we judges go looking for the car's owner or his representative. This is especially true with French-style judging, where the operation of the vehicle is not involved.

An absent owner is missing out on the opportunity to impress the judges with the unique attributes of his vehicle — and any questions the judges may have are left in limbo. There may be additional questions after all the cars are judged, so it's advisable to be available for the prescribed judging period.

Read the rules

Don't assume that the rules and procedures at the coming concours are the same as for the one you last attended. They may, for example, not allow the expensive information board you have prepared to be displayed. While the judges won't deduct points, having the board on display sets an impression that is not favorable. If it is a tradition that the owners wear a coat and tie when showing their car, you don't want to be the guy in jeans and a polo shirt. Make sure you understand the rules, traditions and procedures.

Fluff and buff

Many concours have road tours associated with their event, and judges are instructed to ignore any road rash picked up along the way. Nine times out of 10, however, the owners — or their people — will re-detail the car and have it standing tall as it rolls onto the field. However, it's amazing how many times the most obvious of things are overlooked. Ask the owner to roll up the windows — we're checking for proper operation — and the glass has not been cleaned. Or we might find a large smudge of wax on the fender. No points are usually deducted, but these oversights can taint our impression of the car. With all other things being equal it, these blemishes may just make the difference.

A close-up, low-angle shot of a classic car's front grille. The grille is made of vertical chrome bars with a repeating diamond pattern. Above the grille is a chrome hood ornament with the word 'DELAGE' in a blue oval. Two round headlights are visible on either side of the grille. The background is dark.

Pre-judge your car

No one knows your car better than you. Perhaps you know it too well and can't see the forest for the trees. You are so close to it that minor flaws or incorrect applications just are not evident. Have a knowledgeable friend or fellow club member go through the judging procedure with your car. You might be amazed what another set of eyes might find. And it is far better to find a deficiency in the comfort of your garage than on the judging field.

Double-check everything

Just because it worked when you loaded your car on the trailer does not mean it will work when you arrive at the event. For example, old radios are quirky at best and it may take some fiddling to get it dialed in at the concours site. Better to take care of it the day before rather than trying to find reception with a judge looking over your shoulder.

Carry spares

There is an adage that goes: If you have it you won't need it. Having a replacement light bulb or other parts goes hand-in-hand with double-checking the operation of the various components on the car prior to driving onto the judging field. Just because it worked five minutes ago does not mean it will work when the judges arrive.

Almost every concours will allow the time it takes to judge the next car for a malfunction to be corrected. That's all well and good, but if the bulb or whatever other tiny thing went haywire is not in the spares kit, then you are out of luck. The time, effort and expense to bring your prized car has been lost — because an inexpensive part was not on hand.

Have an elevator story

Imagine that you are getting on an elevator in a large office building, and the gentleman standing next to you asks you about your car. In the short time you have before arriving at his floor, tell an interesting story about your car. That is the story you want to have ready for the judges when they ask you about your car. It must be brief, to the point and compelling.

Thorough preparation wins ribbons

Forget the snow job

The owner who starts in with a tale about his car having been authenticated by the marque's best-known experts and restored by the finest shops in the country sets off all sorts of alarms in the judge's mind. Judges wonder what the owner is attempting to cover up. If the restoration is that good, it will be evident during the judging process. If there are authenticity questions, there will be an opportunity to resolve them. Stick to your elevator story.

Have documentation on hand

If there is a question regarding an item on your car, the judges want to give you the benefit of the doubt. They, however, need something other than your statement that that's the way it was when you acquired the car. An accessories brochure that shows that the item in question was available in the period quickly resolves many questions. Documentation that shows the unique features of your car is a must.

Follow up and ask questions

Okay, you did not do as well as you expected, so what did the judges find that can be corrected for the next event? Most events will provide the judging result or at least a summary of the judge's findings.

Many concours allow a few points for elegance, which is subjective, but many of the specific deficiencies can be corrected. Be aware, however, that judging roses, dogs and automobiles is not an exact science, and a new set of judges may find a whole new set of issues. ■

CONCOURS D'ELEGANCE

AT STAN HYWET HALL & GARDENS

SEPTEMBER 19-21, 2014

With Stan Hywet's 70 acres of manicured gardens and grounds, our ranking as the country's 6th largest historic estate open to the public, and our reputation as the home of The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. co-founder F.A. Seiberling, Stan Hywet stands alone as a distinctive and compelling host venue for one of the nation's most iconic celebrations of rare and unique automobiles.

We invite you to join us as Stan Hywet embraces the original spirit of the concours d'elegance – a celebration of fashion, food and of course, the automobile.
